Overall impression of RE on school website

While the site may lack information about the Head of RE and collective worship, the site actually does a very good job at presenting RE. There may not be strict RE Policy on the site, but the RE overview in the site's curriculum page, is very well presented and informative. The curriculum itself is presented in fair detail, over a six year period.

No. Though assemblies are shown to have a variety of pre-scheduled regular focuses, including Values Assembly, Sing Up, RE, Curriculum Capital, and Celebration.

Overall impression of RE on school website

Curriculum descriptions very good. Due to their focus, the assemblies arguably count as collective worship events. The only points that need addressing are the lack of an RE policy on the site and no listed RE leader/Head of RE, on the site.
